PHYSICAL SOCIETY MOVING PICTURES

At the meeting of the Physical Society to-day at 5 p.m., in the Macdonald Physics Building, Dr. Porter will exhibit a moving-picture showing the retarded movements of the balls in a crushing mill. A magnetic drum separator will also be shown. Minerals will be separated by two different methods, involving, in one case, the difference of specific gravity in rising separation is effected by a similar method but using currents rising intermittently in a jig. A model of the Pardee spiral coal separator will also be shown in working order. These applications of Physics to Mining Engineering are of interest both to physicists and to engineers.

McGILL POLO TEAM BEATEN BY LASALLE

Large Attendance at Fast and Thrilling Game

SCORE 4—1

Team Minus Two Regulars, But New Men Play Well

In a fast and hard-fought game, Lasalle turned the tables on the McGill Intermediates last night, beating them by a score of 4—1. A week ago the game ended 4—3 for McGill, but with Kyle ruled off for a time by the Students' Council and Moore out of the game through illness, the College team was considerably weakened. Wade and Murphy who took their places both turned in good games, and though they lacked the experience of the other players, made up for this deficiency by hard play. A large crowd was on hand to watch the game and excited roars greeted the players at each separate play.

The Game

McGill won the toss and took the deep end first. At the face-off Vickerson obtained the ball for McGill by outswimming Drummond, and both sides took a number of long shots, none of which were dangerous. Giles took the first real shot of the evening which Jardine saved. Play then travelled to the Lasalle end and as Urquhart and Murphy wrestled, the ball drifted loose and a scrimmage took place during which McGill nearly scored. Giles then swam down and passed to Brooks who put in a speedy shot just inside the post, and beyond Jardine's reach.

Lasalle—1; McGill—0.

A minute later Giles threw a high drifter which landed just on top of the net. On the pass out from the goal, Wade overswam Urquhart, a purely accidental foul in his anxiety to clear the ball. Strange to say, however, he was given a one minute penalty, a ridiculous and overstrict ruling. Shortly after, Bowden swung a fast shot from centre and one of his own men farther down tipped it enroute so that it sailed just under the bar for Lasalle's second goal.

Lasalle—2; McGill—0.

As play was resumed, all the players except one Lasalle defence man, crowded the McGill end and with his men speeding into the goal-mouth, Giles let drive from near centre and scored again.

Lasalle—3; McGill—0.

Quarter time sounded just after the teams changed ends. The period opened with some good passing and strenous checking, very few shots being taken. Finally Forsyth took a pass and, holding off his man, shot, but hit the cross-bar, then getting the rebound did exactly the same thing again. Play then shifted but the McGill defence held, until Brooks' shot

CO-EDUCATION IS PROVED SUCCESS

Freshies Win Over Sophs in Debate

The girls of the first year won high praise for their success against the sophomores in a debate on co-education which was held yesterday afternoon in the R.V.C. Common Room. The affirmative. "Resolved that the segregation of the sexes in the colleges and universities of Canada is preferable to co-education", was maintained by Miss Bustin and Miss Perrin of the second year, while the negative was supported by Miss Hazeley and Miss Stocking of the first year.

Miss Bustin, the leader of the affirmative, stated that it was desirable that men and women should be educated separately, not because women were inferior to men, but because men and women had different types of minds and would have to fulfill different duties as citizens, the best results could not be obtained by giving them the same kind of training.

Miss Hazeley, the first speaker for the negative refuted some of her opponent's arguments by pointing out the notable success achieved by many women in branches of study which un-

MECHANICAL CLUB VISITS S.S. ANTONIA

Students Enjoy Hospitality of Ship's Personnel

LATEST TURBINE

Engine-room Was Centre of Attraction and Interest

The Mechanical Club held its second trip this season, yesterday afternoon, when the its members visited the Cunard S.S. Antonia in the Montreal harbour. The trip was successful from every standpoint. About sixty men turned out, mostly from the fourth year.

The men gathered at 2.30 p.m. on the foredeck of the vessel where they were met by the Second Engineer who proceeded to take them around. The upper deck the dining saloon, and the bar attracted many of the men whilst the rocking horses in the nursery created much pleasure amongst the freshmen. The imitation fire in the lounge was declared a "frost", but apart from this, the appointments of the ship delighted everyone.

The engine and boiler rooms, the only places of importance to a "Mechanical" were next visited. The party was joined by the chief engineer who together with the oilers and stokers did their best to answer all the questions which were fired at them.

The Antonia is an example of the very latest in Marine Engineering, having only been launched last spring. She is equipped with twin screws, each driven by a low and a high pressure turbine through double reduction helical gearing. The boilers are oil-fired, are equipped with superheaters, and work under a pressure of 220 lbs. per square inch and 200 degrees superheat.

Much interest was shown in the turbines. Owing to the fact that they turn at 3,000 R.P.M. in case of the high pressure and 2,700 R.P.M. for the low pressure they are extremely small in spite that they develop 4,000 H.P. a pair; in fact the first stage

KERR GIVES TALK ON WAR PREVENTION

First Canadian Club Meeting of Year

WELL ATTENDED

Noted Speaker Handles Subject in Masterful Way

The session's first meeting of the Canadian Club of McGill held yesterday afternoon in the Convocation Hall of the R.V.C., proved a great success. Mr. Philip H. Kerr, former Private Secretary to the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, and one of the most brilliant of England's younger men, delivered an exceptionally interesting and instructive address on war prevention, the most vital topic of the day. For three-quarters of an hour, the large audience, which completely filled the hall, listened to Mr. Kerr with rapt attention.

Sir Arthur Currie, Dr. Gordon Laing, Dean of the Faculty of Arts; Professor Stephen Leacock and Professor Basil Williams, represented the university staff on the platform. R. K. Jones, Arts '23, President of the Canadian Club, in introducing the speaker, commented on his renown and the prospects for a brilliant future career. He stated that he had been warned not to introduce Mr. Kerr as Lloyd George's secretary.

Mr. Kerr explained this before entering upon the subject of his speech, "The Prevention of War." He stated that it was rather an inauspicious time to be introduced as Lloyd George's secretary when itl ooked as if the ex-Premier was going into the wilderness. This would only serve as a means for him to gain fresh strength to come back and again make a fight for the Premiership.

Launching into his subject, Mr. Kerr said that the aim of the day was to seatle problems of war wtihout war. He ummarized the evils of war from an international standpoint, and mentioned as one of the greatest the fact that both Canada and England lost a large part of er manhood which would have helped to shoulder the future burdens of each country.

Three main reasons can be assigned for all wars of present eras The first and greatest of these is Nationalism, the feelinf of every nation for itself. Thus there is greed for extension and for advancement at the expense of other nations The second is the fear of every nation that it will not be abel to control the markets of trade, and the third reason the colour line. This question is a vital one to Canadians. Asia to-day is rising to life; the Asiatic may be a good citizen or he may not; but the colour line always arouses suspicion and a clash between the two races.

But the greatest cause of war is different from all these. The fundamental reason is the division of humanity into independent sovereign states, with no machinery for adjusting their common affairs. The nations of the world are becoming interknit by inventions, trade

'HAPPY' McLAUGHLIN HAS PASSED AWAY

Popular Member of Law '20 Died at Lachine

The death of Henry McLaughlin, best known by his nickname "Happy," at the Lachine General Hospital yesterday noon came as a shock to his scores of friends, among whom were numbered many McGill students.

"Happy," who was twenty-four years l, entered the hospital three weeks ago and succumbed to a severe attack of pleurisy. He received his elementary education at Loyola College, and served overseas with the 66th Battery. As a member of the class of Law '20, he was extremely popular, being always recognized by his ever-present, cheery smile.

"Happy" McLaughlin was prominent in student affairs, playing hockey and baseball, and was for a time on the "Daily" staff. He was particularly adept at writing, and since leaving McGill had written a number of successful short stories. His death is greatly regretted at the Atlas Press, where he held the responsible position of Manag ing Director. While definite funeral arrangements have not yet been announced, it is considered likely that the cortege will leave the residence of his sister, Mrs. Wm. J. Ryan, 45 Riverside Drive, Lachine, on Saturday morning. He is also survived by two brothers, Thomas and John McLaughlin.

MONTREAL, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1922.

A WELL BALANCED UNIVERSITY

A university is presumed to be the house of the man who seeks an education. By an education we infer a specialized knowledge in specifical branches of Science, possibly, and certainly a general acquaintance upon graduation with matters outside the particular profession which he has selected for his life-work, works of the great authors, outstanding events in the world's history, an understanding of the principles underlying social and political happenings conducive to the correct interpretation being taken from the press versions. In short, a man with a college degree should be able to carry himself with credit in any circle of society. Universities, for the most part, McGill included, are putting forth their best efforts to guard against the turning out of a specialized product. At McGill we notice this by the insistence of the Faculty upon men attending lectures in Economics, who are pursuing a Science degree and by the inclusion of English in the curriculum of Medical students.

University authorities are usually among the first to decry any pronounced tendency towards specialization, and yet frequently those who align themselves most definitely against an over-emphasis being placed upon any one subject or branch of subjects are in danger of erring in the direction of that to which they express their opposition. Any inclination on the part of a university to lay stress upon a single branch of learning will leave that institution open to the charge of transition into a technical school, and its graduates in any department, but that which it favours will be regarded as coming from an inferior faculty in a college renowned for its researches along lines other than those to which they have devoted their attentions. Upon investigation neither of these allegations may stand the test of veracity: the college, although devoting undue consideration to the development of one of its faculties, may yet maintain the others at standard. But the stigma remains nevertheless. A university should bring forth other than specialists. To retain true scholarly reputation it must satisfy the demand of the public for men of letters, for men of conversational ability, for men who would meet, in some degree, the requirements of the older type of schooling. In the achievment of this objective, surely a worthy one, a uniformly high standing must be preserved in all faculties; Science and Medicine must be promoted, but not at the expense, or to the detriment, of the Arts Faculty.

At present McGill has her wide repute founded, very largely, upon the Science and Medical Faculties; the Arts Faculty, while deficient in no respect, and retaining on the staff of its professoriate men of equal merit and of unquestioned character, and having as its enrollment a number in excess of any other faculty, is yet not known and not recognized outside of Montreal to the extent as that accorded its sister faculties. It is not necessary to wander far afield to discover the reason: the facuties of McGill are judged relatively to the position they appear to hold inside the university; the public estimate of their worth is not formed so much from its own preconceived notions, as from the idea it receives of the esteem in which that faculty is entertained by the authorities, as evidenced by the interest these latter take in its improvement and maintenance —In other words by the expenditure voted to it. At McGill this statement is well exemplified. Strange and preposterous as it may seem, the faculties of our university would appear to rank with outsiders relatively to the value of the buildings they occupy, Science and Medicine naturally leading the way.

Despite the most valiant endeavours, despite the untiring energy of the most able of lecturers, despite the wisest of direction within the faculty, Arts will never resume its proper place in McGill until thought is given its predicament by these who are governing the university. Arts and Law have long been an object of derision insofar as their quarters are concerned. New accommodation is essential. Talk of additional Science and Medical buildings should not be countenanced until arrangements have been effected to provide for the needs of Arts and Law in that respect, as also the demands of the student body for gymnasium and dormitory facilities as urged in this column in a previous issue. McGill must not degenerate into a technical school; regard for the necessities of all faculties is imperative to prohibit such.

The Canadian Club has come back to life. The meeting held yesterday afternoon presented a decided contrast to that which took place last year. It afforded definite proof that the student body has decided to take an intelligent interest in what is proceeding around them and that they will support an endeavour about college that is worthy of their support. The manner in which the seats were filled in the Convocation Hall was highly gratifying and ought to have been a source of genuine satisfaction to the executive of the organization which sponsored the gathering.

WESTERNERS HELD INITIAL MEETING

Dinner Will be Held Next Week in the Union

Yesterday evening, Westerners were afforded the privilege of "getting together" for the first time this session. At the meeting held in Strathcona Hall Sir Arthur Currie was chosen as Honorary President of the Club, while Jack Cleland was elected President. The election of other officers was left in abeyance pending the inaugural dinner to be held next week at some date to be decided upon this evening. These functions have long been a feature of the activities of the Western Club of McGill, and it is anticipated that the dinner in prospect for next week will prove a happy augury for the remainder of the year.

Tentative plans for the Maritime-Western Club dance were discussed, and it is intended to fix a definite time for the affair when the executive of the two clubs come to an agreement.

ONTARIO MEN WILL MEET IN THE UNION

On Monday afternoon next the Ontario Club will meet in the Union at five o'clock at which the programme for the coming year will be drawn up and business matters discussed.

The Club had intended holding their opening smoker this week, but the executive found it necessary to postpone it until after the general meeting on Monday at which it is likely that special dates will be set for the entertainments on the schedule.

This year the annual membership has been reduced from two dollars to one dollar and this fee is being collected by the faculty representatives at the present time.

AN IDEAL TENANT.

Applicant—You advertised for a janitor, sir. I am a marries man — no children; neat, honest, patient and tactful.

Landlord—I regret that the place is supplied, ry friend — but wait! Couldn't I secure you as a tenant?

Ethel—Tom has taken to drink and gambling since Grace rejected him.

Clara—I see. A sort of fall from grace.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Daily is not responsible for the sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office — that they write upon ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY.

Editor, McGill Daily:

Dear Sir,—We are pleased that Mr. Robertson sees fit to reply to our letters of the 14th inst. In our previous letter we did not take our honourable opponent's letter seriously, because it does not seem possible that a student of McGill could cast such a slur on both the Daily and his fellow students. As we are asked to grant Mr. Robertson is sincere, we shall now do so by stretching our imagination.

It is very questionable good taste to insinuate that students work off old scores by having printed notices of libellous character inserted in the Daily. It is also questionable good taste to suppose that the Daily would print them. We have ascertained that all communications intended for "Quips" are strictly censored before being published.

We quite agree with Mr. Robertson when he states that to know human nature one must study both sides, but we would like to mention at this point that we dit not profess "complete ignorance" of what he called "yellow journalism," we merely stated we did not make a practice of reading it.

While the claim is made that our letter showed bad taste, it was strong enough to cause our opponent to modify his statement. He no longer claims to represent "many students," but expresses disgust at not receiving support from those who commended him on his letter. While our letter has rectified this state of affairs, Mr. Robertson now claims to represent the public; his two letters do not agree, his last letter states that his first letter was primarily the result of conversation with people other than students, whereas in the first he stated that he expressed the feeling of students. Why this lapse of memory?

We have tried to be as courteous as time will permit, and wish to emphasize the fact that our efforts are in the interest of the student body.

We are, Sirs,

Yours truly,
J. J. H. MILLER,
A. E. MANVILLE,
P. L. ALLCORN.

skimmed the outside of the McGill post. Vickerson then swam the ball down and whizzed one past the Lasalle goal post, only on the wrong side. The game was very fast at this stage, the ball being passed from one end to the other with usually a short scrimmage in front of the goals. Just before half time, Vickerson tackled a man one yard from the goal, took the ball from him and shot, but Turner got his hand up and tipped it over for a corner. On this throw, Vickerson received and shot, scoring McGill's only goal.

Lasalle—3; McGill—1.

Half Time

As play was resumed, Drummond obtained the ball at the face-off and some close play followed at the McGill net, Jardine batting several out with his hands since he was hard pressed by the Lasalle men who followed in fast. Forsyth, who was doing considerable work to break up the attack, had his hat dislocated for about the sixth time, while several Lasalle men remarked about "his old gag for geting a rest on the side of the tank". On a free throw, Giles passed to Bowden who, without waiting to shoot, batted it just over the cross-bar. Wade then broke loose at the opposite end but Turner stopped his shot. Jardine held two fast ones and some hard checking followed, with Wade and Urquhart doing a good deal of wrestling. Drummond shot a swift one from centre, which Jardine tipped over neatly. Just after the corner throw had been cleared, three quarter time went.

Lasalle—3; McGill—1.

The last period opened with McGill trying hard to pull up. Murphy let loose his best shot of the evening, which unfortunately went straight into Turner's hands. The ball was then passed to the McGill end, where some thrilling fights took place, each man marking an opponent very closely. At length Giles broke away but swam the ball straight into Jardine's hands. The latter snatched the ball from his opponent's finger tips and swinging it over his heal, threw it out to one of his men.

The referee blew his whistle for a goal since he thought the McGill man's hands had gone within the goal area while making the throw. The umpire, did not consider it a goal, but of course he was over-ruled by the referee who was looking at the play at an awkward angle.

Lasalle—4; McGill—1.

Forsyth and Vickerson then worked hard to lessen the extent of their defeat, with the former hitting cross-bar and posts several times. Wade was checked too closely and given a free throw but all his team-mates were covered and nothing resulted from it. The game ended with both teams fighting hard.

Lasalle—4; McGill—1.

The teams lined-up as follows:—

McGill.	Lasalle.
Goal
Jardine	S. Turner
Defence
Forsyth	Bowden
Defence
Phipps	Urquhart

Vickerson	R. Drummond
Forwards

Referee—A. N. Silver.

SECOND YEAR WINS MOOT COURT CASE

Seman and Heneker Counsel for Appelants

The Moot Appeal Court convened yesterday afternoon, to decide the case of Second Year Law vs. the Third Year of the same faculty. There were a large number of spectators present, including several members of the faculty.

J. C. MacKay presided over the court. The appellants' Senior Counsel was A. J. Seman, and Miss D. Heneker, of Second Year, was their Junior Counsel. Carberry and Taylor represented the Respondents.

The case was fought out in true legal fashion. Both sides presented very heated arguments.

One of the interesting aspects of the case was the badgering of M. J. Seman by the court. This afforded much amusement to the onlookers, the lawyer refusing to budge from his statements and arguments.

Finally the judgment was given in favour of the second year, who easily won their case. The court commended the work of both sides, and especially the able arguments of the counsel for the Second Year.

It is hoped that there will be frequent sittings of the court in the future. Besides being of great value to the law students themselves, the Moot Court affords great interest to the student body at large.

ATHL. ASSOCIATION MEETS IN UNION

Games With Toronto and Queen's in Indoor Baseball

There was a meeting of the McGill Athletic Association last evening at 5 p.m. in the Union. President Don Foss was in the chair. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and adopted the meeting was then open for new business

The first item of new business to be brought up was the question of Intercollegiate Indoor Baseball and it was decided that owing to the large turnout in this popular sport last year and to a substantial increase in the number for this year, that the Indoor Baseball Club be authorized to take the necessary steps to form a Union with Toronto and Queen's.

The application of the following men to play Basketball in the Y.M.C.A. Church League was granted; G. C. Rankin, Med '24, E. G. Marcotte, 'Med 24, E. W. R. Butler, 'Sci. '24, S. A. Craig, Sci. '26, W. A. Clarke, Sci. '26, H. B. Bustin, Med '24, W. J. Stainsby, Med. '25, and G. A. C. Roberts, Med '24.

The old story of men taking part in competitive athletics without first being medically examined was again revived and after a varied and lengthly discussion the meeting were finally forced to suspend the following men from the Athletic Association; J. C. Graham-Browne, Comm. '23, W. H. Kyle, Sci. '25, W. V. Faith, Sci. '23, C. H. Goren, Law Post Graduate, M. Greenblatt, Arts '24, B. Cohen, Arts '24.

The Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing Club then applied for permission to stage an Exhibition of boxing and wrestling with the National A.A.C. This was immediately granted as the Athletic Association is very desirous to encourage competitive athletics with outside teams.

The last item of business to be brought up was the question of continuing the McGill franchise in the City Hockey League. Last year this was turned over to the University A. A. A. and this year the meeting again decided to continue it. The meeting then adjourned.

FENCING CLUB GOING STRONG

New Equipment Expected From Paris Shortly

An important practice of the Fencing Club was held yesterday at five o'clock, in the gymnasium of the Diocesan College. There are now fifteen members of the club, and six of these have had previous experience in fencing.

Mr. Raimandi, last year's instructor, is back again, and has a good many beginners this season. So far, they have been taught their positions—the parries of quarte, sixte, septime, octave and the counters of these.

Four of the members of the club are very keen on epee-fencing and have been practising this very exciting part of the game in the open air. Two years ago it was suggested that an exhibition of epee-fencing be given at the assault-at-arms in order that the spectators and officials might see the superiority of this game over foil-fencing as a competitive art.

Owing to the shortage of fencing equipment in Canada, Howard Aikman, the Secretary, has ordered a large amount of equipment from Paris to be sold to the different members of the club. The funds for this purpose were borrowed by these men from the University authorities on their own responsibility, and it is urged that all of the members buy their equipment from this order so as to contribute towards repaying the University authorities, who have been so kind in thus helping along the club.

CHURCH SERVICE IN UNION ON SUNDAY

Students' Orchestra Will Furnish Musical Setting

Rev. Dr. Thomas Eakin, will deliver the sermon at the University Church Service in the Union at eleven o'clock Sunday morning. Dr. D. J. Fraser, Principal of the Presbyterian College will conduct the service, and in the absence of the Principal, Dean Laing of the Faculty of Arts will read the lesson. The student orchestra and an undergraduate choir will be in charge of the musical part of the service.

Student services were held at McGill years ago; they are held at practically every other university on the continent; they were revived at McGill a couple of years since, and, by their popularity last session, have become established once more as a prominent feature of the life of McGill.

The University is taking advantage of this Sunday being a special day reserved for student services all over

QUEEN'S-VARSITY CLASH TOMORROW

Montreal's Football Season Will Have Fitting Wind-up

To-morrow, Saturday, Queen's and Varsity will clash, and the result of the past week's talk and speculation will be superseded by cold facts as the game progresses. At any rate, a record crowd will view the game, whatever the weather conditions may be. Montreal, always showing fine support to intercollegiate games, will certainly take this rare opportunity of seeing the two Ontario teams in action, and they will not be disappointed, as both colleges will have their strongest twelves on the field.

The Union is besieged by enthusiastic football fans daily, and reports that tickets are selling fast. Toronto and Queen's have both ordered large block reservations, and the McGill rooters are turning out "en masse," and will add noise and color during the afternoon.

Reports from the two training camps are full of confidence; an item in Tuesday's Queen's Journal states:

"Varsity will no doubt be cocky over Saturday's easy victory, and will be chock full of confidence! Queen's, on the other hand, will enter the game with that Queen's spirit of grim determination which has wrested victory out of the hands of defeat so often in the past. It will be a struggle worth watching."

wheel in the high pressure side is only 5 inches in diameter. The outside dimensions are about 5 feet at the largest diameter and 10 feet long. There are two impulse stages and five reaction stages on the H.P. side and seven stages on the L.P. side. Small reversing turbines are placed at the end of each of the low pressure turbines.

Surface condensers are installed directly under the low pressure turbines, a novel feature on these condensers proved of great interest. To combat the electrolytic action between the brass tubes and the iron casing caused by the salt cooling water, large iron anodes are fitted at several places on each condenser. A 10 volt direct current is supplied. Thus the anodes, which are easily replaceable are wasted away while the cast iron casing is not damaged.

The reduction gears, which seems to be the bugbear of the engineers are of the latest design but there is still room for much improvement in their lubrication, and in the material they are made of. A moment's running without copious streams of oil would ruin them, so that a special system is used whereby the turbines are automatically stopped if anything goes wrong with the oiling. The propeller shaft rotates at about 90 R. P. M., which is found an efficient speed for the propellers. To achieve the 40 to 1 reduction two sets of gears are used, the intermediate shaft rotating at 490 R.P.M.

The propellers are 16 feet in diameter with 18 foot pitch, very much larger than those on a steamer like the Mauritania, which has no reduction gears. An instrument is fitted near the after end of the propeller shafts to read the angle of twist over a known length of shaft caused by the torque of the turbines. Readings are taken every two hours while at sea and from them the Horse Power developed is calculated.

The boilers are of the Scottish Marine type, there being two double ended ones and two single ones. Each has three oil burners. The nozzles used are very simple, with no moring ports. The oil is made to spray out with a right hand rotation while the the air rotates in the other direction in the furnace achieving maximum possible mixing. The stokers need not wait till a complaint comes from the upper decy if there is too much smoke, for periscopes are used to observe a light across the chimney uptake, thus showing the density of the smoke. The superheater tubes pass through the fire tubes. Trouble is experienced with the superheated steam wilting away at the valves and pipes.

The engineers in charge seem to regard this power plant as an experiment. Everything has been done to secure maximum efficiency but they ar enot sure that maximum economy has been attained, for the repair costs are high. According to one of them, the problem is a metallurgical one; the man who will produce a hard and a soft metal for the reduction gears that will stand the punishment, and a material that will stand the corrosian of the superheated steam will certainly render a great service to the marine engineering profession.

COMMERCE '23 WIN FROM MEDICINE '27

Chamberlain for Commerce Was the Outstanding Player

A fast and interesting game of baseball was played last night between Commerce '23 and Med. '27, the former winning by a score of 36—8. Although the score was large, many snappy and brilliant plays were performed. Commerce '23 started off from the beginning to show their ability and every man on the team showed great eagerness to win. The Meds. displayed the "never die" spirit, and kept this throughout the game.

For Commerce, Chamberlain played the best game. Both on the field and at the bat he excelled, by making many brilliant catches and healthy clouts. Lux MacCullough pitched steady ball, while Hughie Campbell backed him up at all times.

Quackenbush was the life of the Meds. He both caught and pitched, besides playing an all-round good game. In the third innings Adams made a sensational catch, which saved his team in one of their danger periods. The players and the score were as follows:—

Catcher.

KERR GIVES TAK ON WAR PREVENTION

and intermingling of indivduals, but there is no world council for the adjustment of inter-relations.

"Compare the individual with the state," said Mr. Kerr. 'Inside the state," the difficulties of the individual are settled by law courts and arbitration. He is not allowed to settle his disputes by force. This should be the case with the difficulties of the nations of the world. If decisions are not reached by arbitration, war results. Something must be done in this direction or another war will eventuate."

Mr. Kerr declared that the policy of isolation in world affairs as at present practised by the United States was most unsatisfactory. While admitting there were certain deficiencies in the League of Nations, the speaker said that the line of advance should be based upon t.

"The question of disarmament," he asserted, 'is a very delicate one. Balfour once said to me, "I am more afraid of peace movements than war movements." There is always the danger of a "sham" peace. No nation worthy of that name will absolutely disarm itself because armaments are the security for protection. We may attack the idea of excessive armament, but total disarmament is not possible."

Mr. Kerr said that the British Empire was a League of Nations in itself, and had proved to the world that an international system of preventing war was both possible and practicable. He commented on the great growth of freedom within the British Commonwealth during the past fifty years, especially mentioning the Indian Empire, where it is hoped that the present scheme of self-government, lately inaugurated, will make India's 319,000,000 people free to govern their ow naffairs inside of thirty years, while remaining faithful to the Crown.

Towards the close of his address, Mr Philip Kerr read part of a letter he had just received from a close friend who was one of the British colonels in Constantinople. The officer, who commenced the war as a private, spoke in high praise of General Harington's action in the Turkish Capital, saying that the tact of the Allied Commander-in-chief, and the presence of the British troops saved the day. Mr. Kerr declared that e-Premier Lloyd George's strong policy against the fanatical nationalism of the Turks prevented an Ottoman occupation of the Golden Horn, the seizure of the Straits, and more important, a war which might have involved all Europe.

Mr. Kerr's pleasing personality and unassuming but very effective delivery won all hearts, and there was prolonged applause at the conclusion of his very able address. W. B. Brewer, Vice-President of the Canadian Club, in moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Kerr, said that he was certain that the gathering would like to hear the speaker on "Family Arbitration." Everett seconded the motion, and the very enjoyable meeting closed with the McGill yell.

NEIGHBORS.

"The Jones and the Smiths are quite neighborly. I suppose Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones exchanges recipes?"

"Yes, and so do their husbands."

BIG TREAT FOR MARITIME CLUB

Famous Scottish Singer to Entertain Members

After considerable difficulty, arrangements have been completed whereby the Maritime Club is to be given the exclusive privilege of hearing Scotland's greatest singer, Miss Mairi Matheson, on her first visit to Montreal.

Owing to the success with which she is meeting on her Canadian tour, there is such a great demand for her "records" that Miss Matheson has found it necessary to break her regular schedule and make a special trip to Montreal to sing for "His Master's Voice".

Taking advantage of this opportunity the Executive of the Maritime Club have arranged for her appearance before the Maritimer's of McGill on next Tuesday evening, in Strathcona Hall Further announcements will be published in the Daily.

UNSKILLED HELP.

A couple of tourists were gazing at the sculptured front of a certain church, when one of them quoted the remark about art being the handmaid of religion.

"If that is so," returned the other, glancing again at the crudely carven figures, "Religion ought to give her a month's notice."

HIS GOAL WON.

"You have no ambition," complained his young wife.

"Not now," he replied indolently.

'You never did have any."

"Oh, yes, I did; but I achieved my ambition when I acquired a rich father-in-law."

til very recently had been thought suitable only for men. She then went on to say that most of the greatest educationists of to-day who had tried co-education were heartily in favour of it because of the refining influence which the women exerted on the men, who in their turn did much to broaden the outlook of women.

Miss Perrin, the second speaker for the affirmative maintained that even when men and women were taking th esame subjects the differences in their minds made it necessary for these subjects to be approached in different ways. She also mentioned the fact that where women had separate colleges and manged th'r own college activities, when men and women belonged to the same college societies the men were too apt to predominate. Also Perrin observed that women were less likely to feel free to ask questions or take part in discussions in classes when were were present.

Miss Stocking, the second speaker for the negative, maintained that as men and wome nwere associated in all departments of life after leaving college it was much better that they should learn to understand each other as students. Women had a great duty to perform in the education of their children, but how would they be able to understand boys if during their college days they did not gain some insight into the minds of men. From being accustomed to work together in college men and women would find it easier to work together in later life.

The leader of the affirmative then gave a brief summary of her own arguments and those of her colleague.

After a few minutes which was devoted to a general discussion of the subject, Professor Matthews announced that the judges had unanimously decided that the victory belonged to the negative.

Miss Foster, the president, then thanked the judges, Professor Waugh, Professor Matthews, and Miss Birkett, for their help, and congratulated the successful class.

AT THE IMPERIAL

The Four Rubini Sisters at the Imperial next week are part of the musical family of which Jan, the celebrated violinist, is a brother. The girls are splendid musicians, one, like her brother is a violinist, another a celloist, the third a pianist and the fourth a flutist. The Misses Rubini are in vaudeville presenting a miniature of song and music. Edd and May Ernie termed The Merry Monopede and the Dancing Girl present "Three Feet of Comedy". The two work hard and crowd as many unusual features as it will hold. Arthur Wanzer and Maybelle Palmerare skitologists. Their recent skit is called "She's Hard to Get Along With". Of course she is not but the possibility affords a chance for a deal of good-natured banter. Billie Burke presents George Rolland & Company in a Yuletide Travesty "Bringing Home the Christmas Tree". The title almost tells the story. The tree is trimmed with the best kind of fun. There is a laugh for every twig. May McKay and Sisters are Scotch. They sing, dance and make merry and these things, of course, they do in their characteristic native manner and so their performance is aptly termed a bit of Scotch. Reddington and Grant open the bill with "The Boys from 'Bounce Inn'". They combine a clever assortment of falls and fun.

Dustin Farnum, supported by Irene Rich, will be featured in "The Yosemite Trail", a story told in the playground of the gods.

N. Y. U. IS FREE FROM DEBT NOW

Statement Contained in the Annual Report Made by Chancellor Brown

That New York University, freed of the burden of debt for the first time in a generation, if not actually in the entire 91 years of its existence, is now in a position to fill an even larger place than it now occupies in the educational field of Greater New York, was the message of thankfulness contained in the annual report by Chancellor Ellsworth Brown, to the Council of New York University.

The University's financial handicap has not been removed. Chancellor Brown told the members of the Council, but he pointed out that New York University "for the first time has this running start toward the financial goal of adequate endowment."

"It has been necessary, as was forecast in my actual report a year ago," said Chancellor Brown at the meeting of the Council, "to give first consideration during the year 1921-22 to the improvement of our University finances. In the latter half of the year a new turn was given to this undertaking by unprecedented and most encouraging action on the part of the General Education Board. The officers and members of this foundation, wishing to further educational service of the University and recognizing the fact that a burden of debt was the constant handicap of every effort for the increase of its endowment, entered into an agreement under which their subscription will be applied to the clearing obligations. At the same time they increased the amount of their subscription from $350,000 to $500,000. The Carnegie Corporation took similar action, at the same time increasing the amount of their subscription from $200,000 to $300,000.

What remains to be done is vastly greater, quantitatively, than what has already been accomplished. But it is the good beginning that counts most, and the good beginning has now been made. It has been made through the active loyalty of our alumni and the generosity of numerous friends, giving individually and through the great educational foundations; and particularly, at the critical point through the liberal and discriminating co-operation of the General Education Board.—N.Y.U. Daily News.

NOT A TIGHTWAD.

Miss Bobwig—Do you favor free love, Mr. Hardfax?

Mr. Hardfax—Not absolutely. I don't mind standing for an occasional show and a supper, but nix on the orchids and diamonds.

CLEVER BOBBY.

Father—Well, son, how did you get along at school to-day?

Bobby—Pa, my physiology book says conversation at meals should be of a pleasant character. Let's talk about something else.

MUSINGS OF A MOTOR COP.

Hortense goes speeding fast and far
And never fears the worst;
She passes every other car,
While murmuring, "Ladies first."

MRS. NEWRICH'S GUEST.

Mrs. Hibrow—Did the earl you had to dinner last night bring his coronet?

Mrs. Newrich—I didn't even know he could play one.—London Passing Show.

ALL HE HAD LEFT.

Mrs. Woodall (feeding a tramp).—You seem to have a good appetite.

Tramp—Ah, ma'am, that's all I have left in the world that I can rightly call my own.
